Wheelchair Basketball Brings In Big Crowd

Alana Karen

The Community Service Board attempted a new activity on Saturday, November 6 at 7:30 p.m. in the Field House. The event was called Wheelchair Basketball and benefited the NJ Wheelchair Athletic Association. Basketball players from Prep played in wheelchairs to compete against a physically challenged team. Organizers, Tara Auciello and Alana Karen, were surprised at the large turnout for the game and happy to be able to raise money for the organization that supports the players. It also arranges other activities for those who need wheelchairs in order to perform athletically.

For the first half of the game, faculty and coaches played against the visitors. It was amusing to see the teachers struggle to learn how to operate the wheelchairs. Later on, when students were offered the chance to play, the audience again observed how most of the players fought the urge to get out of the wheelchair and run with the ball.

The Rutgers Prep team lost by a major point spread even though they were given a 10 point jump-start at the beginning of each quarter. However, the wheelchair players remarked that the Rutgers Prep team was one of the best teams they had played. They also insisted that they would be happy to return next year which is definitely something the Community Service Board will look forward to.

Poet Visits Prep

Amy Smith

On Wednesday, November 17, about twenty-five Upper School students from grades nine through twelve took eighty minute blocks out of their regular day and spent it writing poetry with visiting poet Rick Poverni.

Mr. Poverni, a Dodge poet, has published many collections of poems which he shared with the group. The respected poet told a little about himself and tried to give the students some insight into how he gets his ideas for his poetry and how they can get their own ideas and inspirations. Last year's visit with Cat Doty during Writing Day produced a tremendous amount of poetry from known and unknown Prep writers. Hopefully this year will be just the same.

A third group, composed of Excelsior editors and others who have shown a great dedication and love of writing, affectionately known as the RPS Varsity Poets, met with Mr. Poverni for an even more intense session in the afternoon. The serious writing session culminated in an informal poetry reading during activity period where everyone was invited to read their poetry or to just listen.

Hopefully, Mr. Proverni succeeded in getting any cobwebs out of our creativity and gave us enough inspiration to write for another year until the next visiting poet.

Lasagna Dinner

Kristine Coco

On Friday, October 22, the traditional lasagna dinner was held in the Field House.

The lasagna dinner, a faculty organized and run affair, is a long-time fund-raiser to support the school scholarship funds. Although Dr. Loy was in Washington D.C. receiving the Blue Ribbon award, he managed to return to school to attend the 7:30 sitting.

The lasagna dinner is one tradition that has not lost its meaning or spirit throughout the years. It is one event where the entire school can participate and where the community comes together to help a worthwhile cause. The event this year enjoyed a good turnout and the amount of money raised was approximately $3000.

Prep Recognized as Blue Ribbon School

Anne Ackerman

In May of 1993, Headmaster Steven Loy received the information that Rutgers Preparatory School had won the Blue Ribbon Award. In this contest, sponsored by the Council for Americas Private Education and the United States Department of Education, Prep was one of only eight independent schools receiving this recognition nationwide.

What is a Blue Ribbon School? It is an educational institution that excels in its leadership, teaching environment, curriculum, instruction, student environment, support from parents, and the community and the vitality of the faculty and staff. In addition, a special priority was placed on effective programs in science and mathematics.

It's not very easy to become a Blue Ribbon school. The rigorous selection process begins with the submission of a self-nomination by the school, followed by a thorough survey of the programs and people. This survey is evaluated by local education associations, a committee, C.A.P.E., and a special private school panel of advisors. Their recommendations are passed on to the National Review Panel, part of the Department of Education. Only then will the school be visited by a representative of the program. After the detailed visit of the representative, the results are received by yet another committee in Washington where the final decisions are made. Everyone at Prep should be proud of this incredible achievement.

Dr. Loy, Mr. Karman, and Mrs. Goon traveled to Washington D.C. to receive this prestigious award. While there, they attended a reception on the White House Lawn where Vice President Al Gore and Secretary of Education Kelly both made speeches. They also journeyed to the Capitol building and spent some time with N.J. Senators Lautenberg and Bradley who took them down on the Senate floor for a closer look. The actual award was presented at a luncheon sponsored by the U.S. Department of Education and National Association of Secondary School Principals (NASSP). The trio returned triumphantly to Prep carrying a beautiful plaque and a large flag which now are on display in the lounge.

the museum and see exhibits of interest to them. Some students enjoyed the armory and arms exhibit while others chose to learn more about American history. At 1:00, the students regrouped to eat their lunch and by 1:30 were on their way back to school. Though the weather was a damper, the students and faculty agree that the trip was a worthwhile and enjoyable experience.

Spanish Teacher Leaves Prep

Uma Ayyala

On October 23, the Foreign Language department at Rutgers Prep will be losing a valuable teacher. Senora Abigail Cleary, who has taught for the past three years at Prep, will be leaving to go to Kansas City, Missouri. Senora Cleary, who taught students from all three schools including grades four and five in the Lower School, grades seven and eight in the Middle School, and A.P. Spanish in the Upper School, will be leaving because her husband was given a job in the University of Missouri. Says one student, "Senora Cleary has been the only Spanish teacher that has made me truly enjoy the language. She will be missed by all of us."

Senora Cleary's classes will be taken over by Senorita Kerstin Crane. Senorita Crane will also accompany the Spanish Exchange students on their trip to Valencia. The week of October 22, Senor Angel Fernandez Lopez, headmaster of the Colegio Guillermo Tatay in Valencia, visited Prep and met with the faculty and students going on the trip. On Friday, October 29, a reception was held in the media center to welcome Señor Lopez and to allow the parents of the Exchange students to voice any concerns or questions to him. The eleven Prep students involved in the Exchange are scheduled to go in March during Spring Break.

Prep Dress Code Shows Gender Bias

Kristine Coco

Who is to decide what is appropriate dress code? According to the handbook, it is the school, but if a student is within technical dress code, can administration ask them to change? Several weeks ago, a male student wore a long skirt to school. He was asked to change because it was "inappropriate and [did] not represent the values at this school". His skirt was ankle length and worn with a turtleneck and sweater, which conformed to the female dress code. The dress code is flexible to allow students to maintain their own sense of style, yet look appropriate for school. "We do not permit T-shirts, sneakers, ripped, torn, extremely short, tight, transparent, or cut-off clothing." Nowhere in these restrictions does it forbid males from wearing skirts. When wearing pants, girls have to conform to the boys' dress code, why shouldn't a boy conform to the girls' dress code?

The school's philosophy "values intellectual curiosity and personal integrity". How is a student to learn about personal integrity when the school is telling them they are wrong? If a male wishes to wear a skirt to school, he should have the freedom to do so. It is his personal choice, not one of the entire community. One lesson students learn from this school is to make their own decisions. Is this only when the decisions coincide with the "values" of the school?

The clothing students wear represents their personal style. Whether they wear three piece suits, or pants and sweaters; it is their image. A male wearing a skirt is not a disgrace or inappropriate; it represents his integrity and self-reliance. In a world of conformity, a nonconformist should be applauded, not condemned.

Prom Ends 34 Hours Before Graduation

The Senior Class

The scheduling of the Prom on Monday, June 13 and Commencement on Wednesday, June 15 is inconvenient and awkward. We understand that with the Junior classes limited funds and the expense of renting a place on a Friday or Saturday night, it is more convenient to hold our prom on a weekday night, but this Monday/Wednesday combination shows poor planning; Wednesday Commencement will put many families and friends in awkward positions, torn between work obligations, and family obligations.

It is no news that Rutgers Prep ends its school year earlier than most schools. Being a small school, most students are friends with people inside and outside of school. Many of the students at the 1993 Junior/Senior Proms, brought dates from outside of school. This prom took place on a Thursday, with Commencement on the following Sunday afternoon. Students who attended the Prom from other schools could easily take Friday off from school, after a late prom night, with an extended weekend to relax. The Sunday afternoon graduation made it convenient for friends from other schools and relatives from out of town, not to mention working parents to attend.

On Wednesday morning, June 15, most parents and relatives will be working and friends may still be in school. As the schedule stands right now, friends will have to miss school and parents will have to miss work in the middle of the week just to attend our graduation. A prom date from another school who wanted to attend graduation would be forced to take at least one day off from school. Prep students traditionally like to go down to the beach for a few days after the prom, this will be out of the question this year since students would have to be home on Tuesday night to rest up and prepare for Commencement the following morning.

The Prom should be a relaxed time where students can unwind; the pressures of having the important event of Commencement less than 48 hours from such a time are unfair. A weekday Commencement is also an inconvenience for people whose lives are not arranged around the Rutgers Prep school calendar. Unless this schedule is reworked, we will not be able to spend the period between Prom and Commencement enjoyably.

Recently I have noticed that it seems as though the role of the student at Prep is changing. This is evidenced by structural and atmospheric changes. With the winning of the Blue Ribbon Award, changing policies have moved the role of student to pupil exclusively. The changes have ignored the needs of the students to express themselves and to voice their opinions.

The office was formerly a friendly place where students were not afraid to walk in and speak to administrators as necessity dictated. This year, students are blocked by large counters which display hostile signs instructing us to wait for assistance. Clearly, the purpose is to alienate the students and isolate the administration from the students. This lack of communication between administrators and students can lead to unnecessary aggravation and suffering on the part of the students. Our opinion deserves to be heard by the school's policy makers.

Many conveniences, upon which students have relied have been taken away. Availability of the photocopy machine in the workroom is restricted to times when the copy machine in the library is broken, even when students have valid academic work and minimal amounts of free time. Also, the three minute break between periods, which many people used to get books from their lockers (so they don't break their back carrying all their books from class to class) is gone. We do not live in an ideal world where one can travel from class A to class B instantaneously; thankfully many teachers understand this and do not penalize students for getting to class within a reasonable amount of time. This is not helping to lengthen classes; in the past they had begun when the second bell rang, now they begin

Listening to the Students

when a quorum has arrived, which can be anywhere from one to five minutes. The tradition of the bi-weekly forum during morning meeting has been eliminated; the entire first quarter passed without having one. Hopefully the forum's return will be lasting and periodic.

In my thirteen years at Prep, I have always known the school to be interested in what students think and how they would like things changed. This is clearly changing. It seems as though the administration has adopted the attitude that students interfere in the efficient operation of the school. How can the students benefit from their experience at Prep if they do not play an active role in school operation on a day to day basis? Ostracizing the students will be counterproductive to their education.

The Art of Dining Serves Up Spicy Drama

Tara Auciello

Without a doubt, The Art of Dining was the most sexually charged play that RPS drama has ever attempted. But attempt it the cast did, and the result was a tastefully performed and a well directed artistic experience. Directed by Mrs. Barbara Herzberg, the play centers around the Golden Carousel Restaurant. Cal and Ellen are the husband and wife owners of this very successful café; Cal eats the profits that Ellen prepares before the guests even arrive. Paul and Hannah like their wine at the center table. Nessa, Herrick, and Tony are three pretentious women celebrating Tony's birthday, and David and Elizabeth are old timers on a date.

The starring roles of Cal and Ellen were played by Daniel Cantor and Amy Halpin, respectively. Among the shining highlights were Ellen's breakdown in which she randomly throws kitchen utensils and makes Cal lick up Hollandaise sauce off the floor. Cal, played by Dan, was at his best when begging Ellen not to end the marriage and the business over his appetite. The parts were not the most interesting in the script, but Amy and Dan more than made the best of it.

Jessica Hedges and Jay Golon, both newcomers to Prep drama, played Hannah and Paul Galt, a couple out on the town for the night. They talk at the same time, in a very comical fashion. Their suggestive moaning many have embarrassed many a pre-teen sitting with Mommy and Daddy, but they handled the parts with maturity.

Ana Moral, Aisha Griffith, and Diana Liscinski were at table number three at the Golden Carousel. Herrick (Ana) spoke of a female flasher and Nessa (Aisha) was obsessed with the dieting birthday girl's food sprees. Diana played Tony, the confused wimp of the three. Yet Diana did not let her part be smothered, especially while asserting herself in a very funny passing of dinner plates scene.

"AAAAAAAAGH! My mother stuck her head in a an oven," was positively screamed by newcomer Eireann Corrigan as the old, nervous writer, Elizabeth Barrow Colt. While her voice and her frequent outbursts in general were both extremely humorous to the audience, she annoyed

Dan and Amy as Bob and Kelly cook up a storm.

Faculty Shows Talent at Recital

Melissa Stass

On Sunday, November 14, 1993, the annual faculty concert took place. Even though the choir director, Mary Szeles battled a monstrous flu, it was a huge success. Faculty from Upper, Middle and Lower schools, including faculty that work in the business and development offices, gathered together once a week after school to practice numerous song titles. Besides the choir, other faculty performed individually as well. Performers included Ms. Natassia Xsavier on harpsichord, Ms. Susan Yackinous on flute and Mr. James Cipriano on tuba; on violin Ms. Naomi Youngstein, Ms.

Vicki Peterson, Mr. Gary Tinger, and Ms. Michelle Hatcher, Ms. Lisa Lorraine Johnson, who did several flute solos; Mrs. Mary K. Szeles and her accompanist Ms. Andrea Cunnell; Mrs. Lisa Peterson and Jean Meyers-Hunt; and Mr. Jim Ackerman who accompanied himself on guitar.

Economics Trip

Keath Winter

On Tuesday, October 26, Mr. Hordijk and eleven students from his economics class attended a special consumer education conference at the New Jersey Law Center on Rutgers campus. After a buffet luncheon, the Attorney General and Consumer Affairs Director presented a series of important new consumer affairs education material for high schools. Ms. Jane H. Yates, on the directors staff at the New Jersey Department of Law and Public Safety Division of Consumer Affairs, thought that the program may be interesting to Mr. Hordijk and his class. As part of the New Jersey Law Centers Consumers Week, Ms. Yates was instructed to encourage students to learn more about consumer affairs. Worried that many students do not realize the full extent of consumer rights and affairs, the Law Center is taking measures to increase consumer education in schools. Although this seminar was not directed at students, it was important for students to see what consumer affairs education is all about.

Council Corner

Uma Ayyala

With the approach of the holliday season, Council is very busy with the Can Drive and the Toy Drive. The Can Drive, co-chaired by Matt Hobbs and Amy Smith, is in full swing and promises to be as successful as last years Can Drive. The goal of 2200 cans will be donated to the Franklin Food Bank to help those who cannot afford to celebrate the holidays. The class who brings in the most cans will win a free pizza lunch, courtesy of Council. The Toy Drive, co-chaired by Violette Renard and Ria Rasalan, will begin in the next two weeks. The committee plans to make a Wish Tree where children ask for specific gifts. General toys will be accepted as well.

On Tuesday, November 16, Council revived a Prep tradition of the Council Forum. The Forum, organized by Rebecca Caldwell, was held in Baldwin Hall. The administration was represented by Mr. Richard Karmen, Mrs. Susan Gooen, and Dr. Steven Loy. Students were given the opportunity to ask questions regarding the prom, cafeteria, graduation, and dress code. The discussion ran for forty-five minutes and was productive and quite successful.

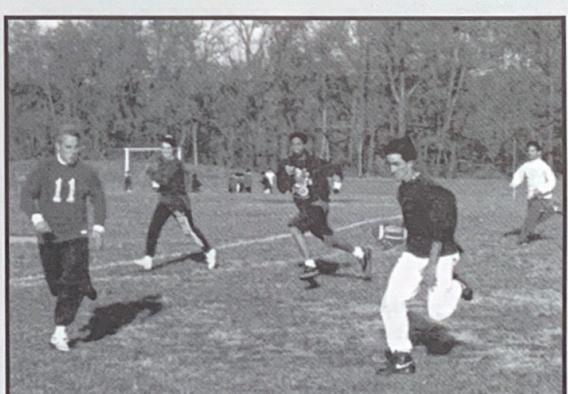

Future plans of Council include the upcoming Blood Drive on December 15 and a Lip Sync Contest scheduled right before Christmas break.

Senior-Faculty Football Game

Anne Ackerman

On November 2, the entire Upper School gathered on the fields for the event of the year: The Senior-Faculty Football Game. Excitement and anticipation were in the air as every spectator huddled together against the wind and cold. The brave players, however, were not daunted by the elements. The faculty gathered on the sideline discussing strategies while the seniors tested some plays on the field.

The faculty were lead by quarterbacks Mr. Forney who threw for at least 5 touchdowns. Mr. Tyree was all over the field, serving the faculty in all aspects. The highlights of the game for the faculty came when Mr. Szeles performed the suit jacket over the piny trick. One of the teachers snuck off the field and was replaced by Mr. Szeles, who was standing in the end zone. Dressing in suit jacket and pants, he remained there without suspicion until receiving a pass, scoring a touchdown for the faculty. Mr. Richardson also did his part by blinding the seniors with his sparkling Pretty Boy shirt.

The seniors did their best to make this a difficult game for the faculty. The seniors speed and agility overcame the faculty often. Quarterback Dean Barber outran defensive linemen Mr. Avella many times to finally score with a enough to show the audience that RPS thespians are capable of doing a drama involving mature subjects. The play was stage managed by Meredith Riley and Erin Armstead, and technically directed by Ron Kelley who was helped by the student tech crew.

Shakespeare Movie

Violette Renard

On Wednesday, October 27, Upper School students went to the Bound Brook movie theater to see Kenneth Branagh's movie version of Much Ado About Nothing. Those who attended were the A.P. and Honors English classes and other students showing interest in the literary arts. Although the trip was scheduled on short notice, it was still a success. The movie, was a superb rendition of William Shakespeare's original play, encompassing all the alluring aspects that attracts modern movie goers while still following the Elizabethan style of Shakespeare's plays. With a cast consisting of well-known actors and actresses, namely, Kenneth Branagh, Emma Thompson, Denzel Washington, Michael Keaton, and Robert Sean Leonard, the students were able to relate the film's plot to one of their own generation, as they recognized the familiar faces of stars from recent movies. As the students were leaving the theater, they expressed their satisfaction and enjoyment of the movie. Mr. Kendall, the faculty advisor also agreed that it was a success; he remarked that Much Ado About Nothing was a well produced movie which many students could benefit from.

REDACTED

Prep Anxious to Shoot Hoops

Mark Nastus

The air is cold, the leaves have fallen, and the sound of basketballs thumping on the hardwood are again audible. Head coach Dick O'Connell is preparing to lead his squad into another season.

After the conclusion of last season, one would have thought that this year's outlook would be a bleak one. Quite the contrary. Prephas fortified its hoops team with the additions of Jaime Jimenez, a 6 foot 5 inch tall center, and Scott Sienkiewicz, a 6 foot 3 inch forward. Jimenez played ball last season at Bishop Ahr and will add bulk to the team as well as his fine touch around the basket. Sienkiewicz, who aspires to play at Brown, played for Woodbridge, a greater Middlesex County team. Characterized by his slashing style of moving to the basket, he also carries a fine handle and outstanding precision shooting from the perimeter.

Jimenez and Sienkiewicz are very important to this year's play-off hopes, yet also important are returning starters Mark Nastus and Mike Maccia. Nastus, the team's Senior Captain, will resume his duties at the point guard spot. He led the team in both assists and steals and must provide leadership on and off the court. Maccia has become a mainstay at Prep. He will be positioned on the wing in the team's 3-man weave offensive style. Maccia established himself as a prolific 3-point specialist, finishing second to Perth Amboy's Jose Urena. He will also help the team with his uncanny ability to finish on his hard drives to the hole.

Offsetting Maccia and Nastus will be the return of former reserves Dan Gonzalez and Jay Brown. Gonzalez looks to garner the other starting role and will add defensive quickness. He has worked very hard and becoming a starter will be a product

'93 Successful for Girls Soccer

Tara Auciello

The Girls Soccer team had one of its most successful seasons to date. Their season end record was 8-4. The girls found their way to this winning record with help from captains Stephanie Rosenstein, Laura Weiner and Jamie Schumer. Coaches Nichols and Glantzow were pleased with the chemistry of this team which included veteran offensive threats Hiam Boraei and Jamie Schumer, defensive specialist Nidhi Kumar, and an array of new freshmen. Archana Kansagra and Alison Seigel found their ways to starting forward positions; Liz Alexander and Nidhi Kumar contributed as fullbacks, and new Senior Ann Ackerman was the Lady Argonaut's goalie with Catie Somers as sweeper. Danielle Metzger was perhaps the team's greatest addition, starting on the midline and often scoring goals.

In their brand new uniforms, the girls made it all the way to the state quarter finals, knocking off St. Mary's Hall with "Prep" painted on their faces. That game was a highlight for Laura Wiener, who scored her first and last five goals in that contest. The team advanced to play Princeton Day School. In the first game with this team, Prep lost 10-2, but in the state game, Prep held PDS scoreless in the first half. Prep did end up losing 4-0, though.

The captains and coaches agree that it was a challenging and exciting year for the Girls Soccer team. The underclassmen, especially juniors Hiam Boraei, Nicole Carlo, Alana Karen, Nidhi Kumar, and Kristine Coco, are looking forward to building on this year's successes next season. The team officially ended its season by celebrating at Stuff Yer Face.

Tennis Fields Young Team

Despite their positive outlook at the beginning of the season, Rutgers Prep's Girls' tennis team finished with a disappointing 2-7. Perhaps more of a blow to the team than their sub-par record is its graduation of Seniors Meredith Maxwell, Nicole Samuels, and Amy Smith. The formidable trio provided the team with leadership which was key for a team consisting of 1 Junior, 5 Sophomores and 2 Freshmen.

When asked about the past season, Smith said "I thought we had a decent season. I think we'll be much better next year because so many people are returning." The experience gained by the underclassmen will be a focal point next year. Junior Nicole Wasson and Sophomores Julie Rockoff and Rebecca Caldwell will spearhead next year's team.

However, this season was also the initial campaign for head coach Jim Ackerman. "It was very interesting. We play a very high level of competition." Ackerman also expressed his optimism for next year's team. With a difficult, but learning, season behind them, Prep hopes to prove their worth.

of his off-season tenacity. Jay Brown has the most important role on the team; being sixth man who comes off the bench. Brown will make or break the team if he is able to step up and fill in where needed. He brings strong rebounding to a team full of shooters.

Also being looked upon to aid the "suave six" will be John Kansfield, Jwan Allen, Willie Gentile and Scott Gwiazda off the bench. Although the focus will be on winning this year, the team will find it necessary to execute the unfeasable. It remains to be seen how well the team will gel. The biggest obstacle facing Prep is its individual attitude. It will be difficult for each player to get enough shots to satisfy his ego. If team members can learn to share the spotlight, it will bestow on coach O'Connell another state title. However, if the team remains individualistic then this season will be a long disappointing one.

Bright Future for XC

Maureen Benitz

The boy's Cross Country season ended with a record of 2-8. This losing record does not represent how hard individuals worked, and how far the team progressed. Throughout the season, the young team, consisting of Senior Paul Constantinides, Juniors Bill Bocra and Doug Mayle, Sophomores Dave Papa, Tom McNally, Dave Belinker, and Sid Singh, and Freshmen, Simon Messing, Scott Yelity, Josh Rosen, Leland Cogliani, Joey Fuoco was plagued with injuries. This caused many runners to be unable to run to their full potential.

Many of the losses were within a few points; Prep lost to Peddie's strong team by only one point. Next year, with innovative coaching techniques and increased discipline, Mr. Dougherty expects the team to mature and to have a strong showing and a winning season.

A Rebuilding Year?

After coming off of a 10-6 record last year with a team composed of an experienced Senior class, this year's boy's soccer team had to look up to people with experience and leadership. After a rough start, they started to work together and racked up four wins on the season. The record of 4-11 did not show how hard the team fought on the field. Over Parent's Day weekend, the team won two exciting games over Ranney and St. Mary's Hall. Another win was over Wardlaw-Hartridge, where most of the second half was played man down. The team had a lot of tough games this year and played two Star Ledger Top 20 teams in Montclair-Kimberly and Gill St. Bernard's.

This year the team was led by the tri-captains Dean Barber, Matt Hobbs and Mike Rose. Seniors Matt Hobbs, Dean Barber, Rajiv Singh and Steven Lenard provided the team with exciting soccer and will be missed next year. The team next year will be lead by veterans Mike Rose, Ryan Neely, and Rohin Singh. Also returning for next season will be Scott Skorupsky, Joe Lawrence, Rob Szeles, and Bobby Roy. The team thanks

Wrestling Previewed

Steven Lenard

Wrestling practices started last Monday. The wrestling team this year is quite strong. We have a large number of returning members as well as a good deal of new talent. Our lightweights should do very well leading off with Rohin Singh, and continuing with Scott Skorupsky, Bill Bocra, David Papa, Henri Renard, and Steven Lenard. Brian Siegal, Daniel Cantor, Matt Hobbs, Doug Mayle, Gregg Costello, and Adam Simnett will follow up in the heavier weights which are not as evenly staffed. Others who will help a great deal are Ken Tashman and Herb Roberts. Evan Williams, an eighth grader with much wrestling experience will also be working out with us this year.

Coming off of a state championship, this year's team will have to work hard to repeat its previous performances. Recruiting is still key; the current members are still looking for new recruits. If the team performs to its potential and has no major misfortune with injuries, success is likely.
